

Do not allow the American airwaves to completely change into a propoganda machine. Its bad enough the way it is, why allow it to become worse? OH - I know why it might be ok for Sinclair to do this.....because they (a media corporation) are advancing the opinion of the current administration. We don't actually have to have any integrity. This is America after all, right? If the current President can't win an election based on his accomplishments, then we better start trashing our principles, eh?

Listen, we all know that John Kerry is only going to continue the war Bush started. Its not like he is going to harm anyones profit margin and if he has the chance to do it, neither the House or the Senate will give him the tool to make it happen.

Even if - God forbid (and we all understand how important it is that God follows your lead) - Bush would somehow allow this election to be lost, all of you right wing Republican whores will still make all of the advances you need to fill your pocketbooks and advance your twisted imperialist ideology....it just might go a little (ever so little) slower, than your original neoconservative plans have predicted.

Throw the dice. See how much the election results have to be manipulated next month first. Maybe this Sinclair version of communist propaganda isn't required yet. You may have already convinced the majority of the country. Please don't interrupt Dr Phil. I'd hate to miss CSI. I'm hooked on Oprah. If networks decide to go political, I may never see Survivor again. This whole Sinclair thing could start a trend.....I need my soap commercials, Mr Powell. Thank you for making America great!
